

Write the plain English alternatives for the following sentences and say what was wrong with the original sentence (e.g. use of couplets):

1. It was inevitable the claimant would lose the case because the writing was on the wall from a very early stage.
2. I need you to tell me, when the incident occurred, what the cause was, whether there were any witnesses and how much you estimate your losses to be.
3. The other party's solicitor undertakes and agrees to send the documents by next week.
4. Until such time as the defendant files the documents, the claimant is not required to take any action.
5. The said aforementioned document clearly sets out the requirements.
6. The past history of the claimant is not going to look good in court.
7. Unless and until the defendant performs and discharges his obligations, the claimant does not need to take action.
8. Please can your good selves peruse the said document and let me have instructions forthwith.
9. They failed to pay the premium and therefore the policy is now totally null and void.
10. You must give notice to the defendant before you issue the court proceedings.

11. During such time as the case is in court, you must not leave the country.
12. Thank you for your email of even date, the contents of which are noted.
13. You must not alter or change your witness statement after it has been signed.
14. The claimant shall hereinafter be referred to as John Smith.
15. You will have to attend court for the reason that you are legally obliged so to do.
16. You must not enter the property for the period of 7 days.
17. For and during the period of 14 days, the defendant will have time to draft their defence.
18. We enclose herewith a copy of our letter of even date.
19. Can we please find some terms on which we mutually agree.
20. We must all attend court, save for the expert witness.